PREDICTS REVOLUTION

Cleaver Says Law 'Out Of Order'

By DAVID LEWIS
Sentinel City Editor

A rambling, oftentimes incoherent, Eldridge Cleaver brought his message of violence and revolution to more than 7,500 persons at the University of California here Friday night.

More than 4,000 persons had to listen to Cleaver via outdoor speakers as the Presidential nominee of the Peace and Freedom Party spoke to the largest audience ever assembled at the university.

Although persons entering the campus gymnasium were frisked and Cleaver himself was ringed by more than 10 bodyguards, there was little or none of the violence that Cleaver talked about for nearly an hour and a half. A Republican candidate for the State Assembly from the Chula Vista area confronted Cleaver as he entered the gym, but he was quickly hustled aside by police.

Cleaver, who began speaking an hour late, immediately launched an attack on Gov. Ronald Reagan and U. S. Senate candidate Max Rafferty, labeling them Donald Duck Rafferty and Mickey Mouse Reagan.

Cleaver, who has been surrounded in a controversy over whether he should lecture at the University of California at Berkeley, said he "hadn't any idea that there were people out there in the political thickets that were so hard up for votes, so hard up for issues" as to be concerned with the proposed lecture series.

"I was astounded when I heard that the great Governor was wasting his time on my meager activities," said Cleaver.

Making liberal use of obscenities, the Black Panther leader claimed that the only thing the Governor is capable of doing is "regurgitating the script of his script writers.

"If they took away the script, all you'd hear would be effeminate 'oinks'," said Cleaver, who refers to most white persons as pigs.

Cleaver said that "oink, oink Rafferty with his PhD in physical education would make a good referee or a good coach."

He labeled American Independent Party presidential candidate George Wallace as a "featherweight" and a "featherbrain."

"We don't have a Negro problem any more," said Cleaver. "We have a Wallace problem."

Cleaver listed three categories of "pigs"—1) avaricious businessmen who he told his audience "might be your mother and father"; 2) politicians; and 3) the "Gestapo local police."

Cleaver, a convicted felon, was extremely critical of police. He warned of an international takeover by the police through the International Association of Police Chiefs.

"The police are no longer local," said Cleaver. "They are national and international. They have a lobby and unlimited funds. They can rob you legally through LBJ's fund-raising machine—taxation."

"Law is out of order. It is out of order in this country whether you want to face it or not."

Cleaver urged his audience to "close the books of history up to now. It's all written in blood, corruption, and inhumanity," said Cleaver. "It's a history of the pigs, by the pigs, for the pigs—and it's not going to serve us as a guide for us. "Are you going to cling to your dead heroes," said Cleaver. His audience shouted 'no.'

"You," said Cleaver, "are going to be the generation that creates the heroes for future generations."

Cleaver predicted a "full-blown revolution" for the United States because the "capitalistic system cannot serve its people.

"The people of the world are rising up and saying 'no more'," said Cleaver, "and if you shoot us, we're going to shoot back.

"The next battlefield after Vietnam is right here.

Cleaver charged President Johnson with war crimes for alleged atrocities in his conduct of the Vietnamese War.

"Who would not vote guilty against LBJ for the crimes against the Vietnamese people? He wouldn't get an acquittal. He might get a hung jury in La Jolla or Orange County, though."

Cleaver said that Martin Luther King "took nonviolence with him" when he died.

"It's gone," said Cleaver.

44th YEAR, NUMBER 80 | SUNDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1968 | 2724 GARNET AVE., PACIFIC BEACH, CALIF. 92109

Surf Champs Display Art In Aquarama

The spectacular wave-riding techniques of the world women's surfing champion will be on display in the eighth annual Aquarama next Saturday and Sunday.

The champ is an Ocean Beach resident, Miss Joyce Hoffman, 20, who also will be seeking her second straight Aquarama title.

A 5-foot 8-inch blonde, Joyce established herself as queen of the surfers in 1966 when the world championship tournament was held here.

Miss Hoffman, who started surfing at Capistrano Beach, when she was 13, moved to Ocean Beach a year ago because, she says, surfing conditions are much better in the San Diego area.

She has her own model surfboards and goes surfing almost every day. During the summer she pratices four to five hours a day, but cuts that to two hours in the winter.

Miss Hoffman will defend her world title in Puerto Rico next month, and she is having four special boards constructed for the occasion.

"Surfing is my whole life," she says. "It means everything to me. It's exciting, different and challenging. It relates more to nature than any other sport."

Joyce captured her first cup four years ago, and since then she's collected more than 75 other trophies.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hoffman, reside in Capistrano Beach.

Another local threat for title honors is Skip Frye, 27, of Pacific Beach, winner of Aquarama mens championships in 1965 and 1966. He also annexed Pacific Beach championships in 1963 and 1964.

Skip, a graduate of Mission Bay High, started surfing when he was 17 and, when the surf is running good, he practices about five hours a day.

Frye, who weighs 150 pounds and stands 5 feet 8 inches, designs surfboards for a living, and has his own model surfboards.

"I had asthma when I was younger," he recalls, "but I got rid of it because surfing built up my wind and resistance. It puts you close to nature. The first ride you get is as thrilling as any."

Skip and his wife, Marcia, reside at 1830 Thomas St. They have three children, Lauren, 6; Donnie, 4, and Braden, 2.

Doug Smith, chairman of the Aquarama committee, expects 500 entries for this renewal. The record was set last year when about 450 surfers competed.

Contestants will be vieing for 44 trophies. The trophies are on display at Arnold's Hardware, 4952 Newport Ave.

SURFING LUMINARIES—Heading for a practice session in the surf at the foot of Newport Avenue are Joyce Hoffman, of Ocean Beach, and Skip Frye, of Pacific Beach, two of the top title threats in the Aquamara scheduled next Saturday and Sunday. Miss Hoffman is the world women's surfing champion and defending titlist in the Aquarama. The event is sponsored by the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Window Contest Planned

Halloween Painting Set

A Halloween window-painting contest for junior and senior high school students in the Peninsula will be sponsored by the promotional committee of the Ocean Beach Town Council.

Pat Piro, committee chairman, said yesterday the contest will be held Oct. 26 with gift certificates totalling $100 as prizes. Paintings will remain on display through Nov. 1.

Winners in each division will receive a $20 gift certificate, and second, third and fourth place finishers will get $15, $10 and $5 certificates, respectively.

Most Ocean Beach merchants, including restaurants, barbershops and beauty salons, will accept the certificates, Piro said. Merchants will be able to redeem the certificates through the town council.

Contestants will be required to furnish their own ladders, water paint and brushes, and can register with Piro in his store at 4940 Newport Ave.

"Because of limited window space, 75 to 100 windows, entries will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis," the chairman stated.

"We would especially like to have the participation of property owners whose stores are unoccupied. We hope to make this an annual promotion."

To date, 40 merchants, whose stores have 71 windows, have volunteered window space.

Town Council Names Griswold President

Mike Griswold, who has been an Ocean Beach resident for seven years, was elected president of the Ocean Beach Town Council Thursday night, succeeding Ned Titlow.

Griswold, 35, a charter member of the organization, was the unanimous choice of the board of directors at a meeting held in Bethany Lutheran Parish Hall. He was unopposed.

Others elected were Mrs. Page Cummins, first vice president; Dr. Robert W. Wheelock, second vice president; Mrs. La Verne Brown, re-elected secretary, and Rev. Willard Laatz, treasurer.

Five board members were re-appointed committee chairmen. They are Mrs. Mary Strelchun, clean-up committee; Al Vallin, beaches, zoning and property committee; Maurce Parson, youth committee; Pat Piro, promotional committee, and Mrs. Barbara Kassler, human relations committee.

Named as chairmen of new committees were Mrs. Cummins, hospitality; Titlow, newslatter; John Lewin, publicity; Dick Thorpe, ways and means; Henry Fuchs, telephone, and Mrs. Harriette Ingram, registrar.

Griswold and the other officers will formally take over at an installation banquet to be held Friday at 6 p.m. at Yacht Harbour Inn, 1021 Scott St. Councilman Sam Loftin will be the installing officer.

A 1959 graduate of San Diego State, with a degree in industrial management, Griswold is a computer systems analyst at the Fleet Computer Programming Center on Point Loma. He has been there four years.

Prior to that, the new president served in engineering administration at Convair-Astronautics. A native of Chicago, Griswold is a graduate of La Jolla High School and has resided in San Diego since 1933.

He and his wife, Betty, live at 4437 Brighton Ave. They have five children, Tim and Tom, 10-year-old twins; Gail, 12; Ted, 9, and Gretchen, 8.

His mother, Mrs. Helen M. Griswold, resides at 1241 Hornblend St.

HIPPIE STUDY

Mrs. Fran Hanks, the Council's executive director, told the board that a Peninsula businessman, who prefers to remain anonymous, has offered to finance a trip by a local group to San Francisco for the purpose of studying how that city has coped with its hippie problems.

The board voted to accept the offer. Temporarily named to the study group were Billy Riley or Bob Gilham, of the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce; Titlow, Spike Webb, Mrs. Cummins, Mrs. Hanks and Councilman Loftin.

Al Vallin said the beaches, zoning and property committee is studying a proposal calling for construction of safe-access stairways at the foot of Ladera Street, Cordova Street and Point Loma Ave.

The proposal has the backing of Loftin and the Sunset Cliffs Preservation League. Vallin said his group would make a recommendation on the subject at the next board meeting.

The board passed a motion by Vallin providing that the Council write a letter to the city asking it to press the contractor to finish work on Ocean Beach Park. Originally, the project was scheduled for completion Sept. 19.

SUPPORT PROMISED

Mrs. Pauline Sneed reported that the youth committee has voted to support the "In Between" in its efforts to find a new location. The "In Between," a controversial coffee house, has been ordered to vacate its premises at 5038 Newport Ave., effective Oct. 15.

Ray Perine, of the promotional committee, said 58 merchants have agreed to participate in the committee's Christmas lighting project. Oct. 15 was set as the deadline for buying the lights. Perine also said plans are under way to place Christmas decorations on 24 light standards along Newport Avenue.

Titlow announced that in the future anyone wishing to address the board must make arrangements beforehand. He said the ruling applies to Council members as well as non-members.

Bay Plan Meeting Cancelled

A meeting to review a preliminary report on the updated Mission Bay Master Plan has been cancelled.

Pauline des Granges, city Recreation Director, said the joint session of the city Park and Recreation Board and the city Planning Commission had been cancelled at the request of William Pereira and Associates, the bay consultants. It has been rescheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 30, at 1:30 p.m. in Room 207 of the Community Concourse.

Miss des Granges said the regular Park and Recreation Board meeting would be held as usual Wednesday.

A Good Week For Bikes

Two enthusiastic advertisers called Thursday afternoon to cancel their classified ads selling bicycles.

The other said hers was sold by 9 a.m. and she had many calls.

Now is the time for all good housewives to call 274-3210 and empty the garage of unused items with a Sentinel Classified ad.

TO PLANNING COMMISSION

Plan Goes Back For Review Wednesday

Will the City Planning Commission adopt or reject the Peninsula Community Plan?

That question will be answered Wednesday, starting at 9 a.m., when the Commission will hold its second public hearing on the Plan in the City Council Chambers, 12th floor, City Administration Building.

Commissioners postponed a decision at the first hearing Sept. 11 after several persons had requested more time to study the final draft.

At that session main proponents for adoption were three officers of Peninsulans, Inc., Charles Bahde, president; Jack Wardlow Jr., first vice president, and Mrs. Helen Fane, second vice president, along with Billy Riley, second vice president of the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Peninsuians Inc., prepared the Plan, a 20-year projection encompassing Point Loma, Ocean Beach and Loma Portal, after a two and one-half year study.

Objections to parts of the program were voiced by David Fleet, of 2150 Chatsworth Blvd.; Mrs. Kermit Keen, of 3557 Wawona Dr., and Mrs. Fran Hanks, executive director of the Ocean Beach Town Council.

Since that time Peninsulans, Inc., met Council objections by adopting a recommendation that additional study be made of the area bounded by Sunset Cliffs Boulevard, West Point Loma Boulevard and the flood control channel, including approximately 103 acres of publicly owned land.

The Council had asked that the area, previously slated for multi-family residential and commercial use, be included in the Park and Recreation element.

The project is generally bounded by the Pacific Ocean on the west, San Diego River Control Channel on the north, and military installations and San Diego Bay on the south and east. It covers a population of some 40,000 persons.

One of its features is preservation of the existing single-family residential character of the Peninsula's interior portion.

Sentinel Offers Plan For Cancer Insurance

The Sentinel is offering as a bonus to subscribers a Cancer Insurance Plan available to either individuals or family groups.

A description of the plan, along with an application, appears in a full-page advertisement in this issue.

Basically, the plan covers subscribers regardless of age, and is underwritten by the Commercial State Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis, Mo.

Under the family group policy, the husband and wife are covered, as well as all children from one month of age to 18, provided they are unmarried. The yearly fee for the family policy is $36, payable at a rate of $3 each month, and this monthly fee includes the subscription price for the newspaper.

After the original application is made, the carrier boy will collect each month to keep the policy in force.

The yearly fee for an individual policy is $28.80. Both the individual and family group policies may be paid in advance.

The premium for the family group plan will remain the same, whether or not there are children. Each additional child a couple may have, however, will be covered at no additional cost. Also, the policy is guaranteed renewable, which means it can never be cancelled by the company.

And, there is no waiting period, the policy is in full effect the day it is issued.

The Commercial State Life Insurance Co. is licensed to do business in California and has the approved rating of the A. M. Best Co., analysts of the insurance industry since 1899, and Dunne's International Insurance Reports.

Alton E. Shader of San Diego will be the agent for the policy program and will assist in its administration.

Additional applications for either type of insurance plans can be obtained by writing to The Sentinel, 2724 Garnet St., San Diego, or phone 274-3210.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By DOCTOR JOHN J. FLYNN
Doctor of Chiropractic

Q—How can you cure illness without medicine? It doesn't make sense.

A — There is a great deal of misinformation about Chiropractic and, in many cases, just plain nonsense that's believed by many people. A doctor of Chiropractic does not prescribe medicine, deliver babies or set broken bones. He does restore spinal misalignments. Your spine is made up of 24 small bones called vertebrae. The main nerve trunk lines that control all body functions emit from between these tiny bones and radiate out to all parts of the body. If the vertebrae is knocked out of alignment through an accident or poor posture, it will pinch these nerves. This shuts off the nerve energy supply and depending on the extent of the damage, cuts off the body function controlled by this nerve. This is what causes illness, disease and a host of physical problems. The misaligned vertebrae must be restored by corrective Chiropractic adjustment in order to restore your good health.

Q—I have this constant dull ache in my shoulder. Not real pain but I'm afraid it'll get worse. I think it's arthritis. What do you think?

A — Don't diagnose your own case. Shoulder pain can be caused by neuritis, bursitis, neuralgia or arthritis — and in many cases arthritis is misdiagnosed. The pain may be the same but quite different spinal nerves can be involved. The seven joints that make up the shoulder are a real marvel of engineering and they must all act in perfect rhythm to function properly. If the nerve supply is blocked or what we call impinged in the cervical area of the spinal column than shoulder pain is the first signal of trouble. The pain can be moderate or excruciating depending on the extent of the nerve blockage. I'd have an X-ray taken to determine if this is the case. Doctor Flynn welcomes your letters on health problems. Mail your questions to his office at 6943 Linda Vista Road or telephone for an appointment to discuss your problem directly with him. Consultation without obligation. Financial Report

By TOM MARTIN

A CHEAP WAY TO BUY XEROX? — Depicted on company stationery, the near-naked muscleman still clobbers the big brass gong. But not much besides that familiar old symbol remains unchanged at the Rank Organization.

The founder and old-style film mogul, J. Arthur (now Lord) Rank, still holds the title of president, but at 79, is no longer active in the company's affairs. For some years the Rank Organization has been in the charge of John Davis, 61, who gradually — some say too gradually — has decreased Rank's dependence on the film industry. At the same time, he has steered Rank into electronics, the manufacture of TV sets, bowling and hotel management.

The Rank Organization and Xerox Corp. split the profits of Rank Xerox according to a complicated formula that calls for a 50-50 split up to a certain level, after which two-thirds goes to Xerox and one-third to Rank. For the fiscal year that ended in June, 1967, Rank Xerox made a profit of $29 million on sales of $173 million — a 39 percent gain in sales and a 32 percent gain in earnings over the previous year. The profits that Rank realized from Rank Xerox came down to an after-tax net of $10,800,000 — almost three-fourths of Rank's total net profit of $14,900,000.

The balance, of course, came from the Rank Organization's "non-Xerox" activities. For the year ending in June, 1967, however, that balance dwindled not only in relation to the earnings of Rank Xerox, but also in absolute terms. Heavy losses in hotel management and the failure of bowling in Britain (evidently, the only bowling that really interests an Englishman takes place on the cricket pitch) accounted for that weakened performance.

Although Rank's management says that the turnaround in these activities is at hand, the growth prospect of Rank Xerox is clearly responsible for the recent climb of the Rank Organization's common stock. That stock sold at a low of around $3.75 per share in 1967, and moved to a high of about $9 this year. At that $9 price, the stock sells at an earnings multiple of 37. If Rank's only profits had come from Xerography, the multiple at $9 per share would work out to 46. The multiple for Xerox Corp.'s stock in the U.S., at the high so far this year of $328, is around 74. At that multiple, the stock of the Rank Organization would be selling at around $18.

So — is the Rank Organization's stock a cheap way to buy Xerox? About 30,000 Americans, some of whom paid the 18 percent interest equalization tax to become shareholders, evidently think so. All together, they hold about 30 percent of Rank's issued share capital.

Czech Tragedy: Why The Shock?

By FRANK GETLEIN

WASHINGTON— The tragedy of Czechoslovakia has thrown into high relief a fundamental misunderstanding about the alleged softening of hostility between the Russians and the Americans.

Apparently, our immediate reaction, from the President to the man in the street, was to harden it all back up again.

The premise for this reaction was our shock and horror that the Soviets could do such a thing as invade Czechoslavakia, take its government into custody and, through the presence of armed might, force policies and actions into a mold more suitable to Soviet ambitions in Eastern Europe.

Horror, yes, but why the shock?

The why is that we have beguiled ourselves into the happy belief that all the awful things we didn't like about Soviet Russia were the fault of dreadful old Stalin, the criminal maniac who perverted the workers' revolution into one-man tyranny modeled more on Ivan the Terrible than on Marx. Now that Stalin has long gone to that great comintern in the sky, we tacitly believed, the Russian Communists can afford to behave like civilized gents and will doubtless do so.

* * *

There are more fallacies mixed together in that hopeful belief than you could easily sort out at an East-West Congress of Peace and Friendship, but it's worth making the effort.

The Russians have never subscribed to what we think of as the Western belief that there are some things civilized nations don't do. The Soviets will do anything that serves their purpose—the same as any other power, including us.

They came into existence, not by making a revolution, but by stealing a revolution from Kerensky and that crowd. Beginning with Trotsky, they have systematically disowned and murdered their own prophets whose prophecies have proved even momentarily inconvenient. The truth is not in them, any more than it is in any major power. Why be shocked?

The thing was that East and West seemed to be drifting toward a state of relative calm in relation to each other. The balance of terror played a large part in this. We knew that they could wipe us out and they knew that we could wipe them out. Both knew that neither could pull off the obliteration without bringing it on themselves. That contributed a lot to the easing of tensions.

But apparently we are unable to accept such an obvious kind of mutual accommodation for its own sake. We have to dress it up in the language of political evolution. The Russians, we convinced ourselves, since Stalin was dead and the Third World War hadn't started, were progressing nicely along the road to democracy and even capitalism. Any minute now, the tractor works at Magitogorsk would go public and Brezhnov would announce that he was not running for re-election, preferring to teach school in Pedernalesk.

* * *

It didn't quite work out that way, as a result, the people who used to hope for a detente are now saying that any agreement with such people is out of the question.

How wrong.

Not just wrong, but diametrically wrong. If the Russians were nice folks, with codes of conduct about other people's countries that we could all rely on, there would be no need at all of any agreements, any negotiations. It is precisely because they are an untrustworthy bunch that we wish, in the first place, to get them around a table and to get their names on a piece of paper.

The Soviets never were becoming anything but what they always were at heart. The changes that have taken place have taken place solely because they perceived it to be to their advantage to come to agreements with us leading to a mutual agreement not to blow up the world.

After Czechoslovakia, no doubt we think once more that they operate on a system of morality we do not understand, but there was never any real reason for supposing anything else. They believe in and practice force and fraud for the higher purposes of the march of international communism.

Their avowal, in Czechoslovakia, that such is the case is no reason at all to end negotiations. It is a powerful reason to continue them and to bring them to a successful conclusion as soon as may be.

Several Maryland officials have suggested that in addition to the "Three R's" (for 'reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic) the school systems teach another "R," the Respect for Law and Order.

Even if Wallace loses, he deserves a consolation prize. How about making him Attorney General?

American Alcoholics Are In Peculiar Spot

By JUDITH RANDAL

WASHINGTON — American alcoholics — five million strong — are in a peculiar spot. Society cannot make up its mind whether to go all out to help them now or — pending further developments — to leave them in the jails.

Twenty years ago, there would have been no disagreement. Those were the days when drunks were considered reprehensibly weak-willed; jail was their just desserts. Now that alcoholism is recognized as an illness, however, punishment is no longer relevant, but no one can decide what is. Meanwhile, about one out of three arrests is for public drunkenness, and alcoholics continue to have twice as many automobile accidents as the population at large.

At the 28th International Congress on Alcoholism held here last week, Dr. Dwight L. Wilbur, president of the American Medical Association, echoed the view of many physicians by saying that he sees little point in tackling the treatment of alcoholics until research can furnish doctors with better therapeutic tools.

Dr. Dwight J. Pittman, chairman of the congress and the director of a St. Louis alcoholism clinic, took issue with Wilbur's stand on the ground that other nations — notably Sweden and Britain — successfully rehabilitate chronic drunkards. The City of Stockholm alone, he pointed out, spends $7 million annually, whereas in the United States the total federal budget for this purpose is only $11 million.

Chronic Illness

In this kind of dispute, one sees history repeating itself. When it come to chronic illness — and alcoholism is a chronic illness — Americans generally prefer to do nothing unless they can do the spectacular. It is the tradition of our scientific heritage to be less concerned with improving the quality of life than with saving life itself — no matter how brief or tenuous the hold on life may be.

Certainly, this has been the impetus for the organ transplantation movement at the expense of certain other public health needs. Certainly, too, this is why there is little systematic care available for people with progressive disorders like rheumatoid arthritis. In Britain, by contrast, there are clinics for arthritics in virtually every community. They provide carefully coordinated week-in, week-out programs to retard their downhill course. Substitute "alcoholism" for "rheumatoid arthritis" and, although the symptoms are different, the picture is the same.

Blighted Lives

So are the lives that are blighted as a result and the consequent economic loss. If one considers that most people who develop rheumatoid arthritis do so as young adults, it is easy to see what effect there is on a family with a badly crippled parent. Similarly, if one considers that the typical alcoholic has a spouse and several children —at the outset of his illness, at least — the effects are equally devastating.

With the United States surpassing France as the nation where the incidence of alcoholism is the greatest, statistics indicate that alcoholics and their families number 25 million. Or, to put it another way, the life of one American in eight is directly or indirectly touched by alcohol. Yet in a report recently issued jointly by the American Psychiatric Association and the National Association for Mental Health, only 11 treatment centers in the country were found "worthy of mention."

With a problem of this magnitude, it is understandable that some people feel that the social and medical services required to keep an alcoholic functioning in society could overwhelm monetary and professional resources and that those who cannot be helped by the Alcoholics Anonymous approach will simply have to be lost. But this overlooks the fact that the very identification of a social problem as an illness can, if the proper steps are taken, generate scientific progress that would not otherwise occur.

The kind of mental retardation known as Down's syndrome or mongolism — once also a social stigma — is an example. With the discovery in the 1950s that it was associated with chromosome abnormalities, a search ensued for their biochemical consequences. This, in turn, has led to a drug treatment which has not yet proved successful, but promises to improve the intelligence of these unfortunate children if begun promptly after birth.

Similarly, the recognition that alcoholism is a disease has led researchers to look for an inborn biochemical "marker" of abnormality that also in the long run may prove useful. A deviant form of an enzyme found in the liver called alcohol dehydrogenase, recently identified by Jean-Pierre von Wartburg in Switzerland, may fill this role.

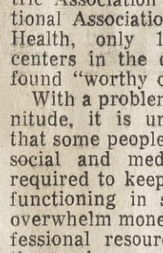
Meanwhile, it has been demonstrated that while alcoholism cannot now be cured — any more than can diabetes or gout — a comprehensive treatment program can often keep the alcoholic with his family and on the job. With only a few exceptions, however, American public policy has yet to reflect in action the seemingly self-evident proposition that research on alcoholism and services to alcoholics can do more in combination than either can alone and that the problem is sufficiently crucial to obviate the "either-or" approach.

Pro Protesters Follow Newsmen

By DON MACLEAN

WASHINGTON — Regular readers of this space no doubt are aware of my contention that the news media does not rush about the world chasing riots but, rather, it is the rioters and professional protesters who follow the newsmen.

This has been demonstrated once again in Mexico City. Sure, some people say the students are shooting at soldiers because, in the recent past, Mexico authorities have used "unnecessary" force. Perhaps. But, if you ask me, the main reason the students have been whipped into a frenzy is because the press happens to be in town for the Olympics.



MACLEAN

Things were a trifle slow on the eve of the Olympics' start and Mexico's professional agitators knew that bored newspaper and TV reporters would be delighted with some action. It was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for the protesters to air their complaints — real or imagined — to the world.

The same thing happened at the Democrats' convention in Chicago. The world press was in town and more or less bored since Hubert Humphrey was a lead-pipe cinch for the nomination. You don't think there would have been a Yippies' revolt in Chicago if the convention and the reporters had been in, say, Los Angeles, do you?

(There might have been more trouble at the G.O.P. convention, because all the elements were there, except that Miami Beach was too difficult to reach. Even so, there was some trouble; however, the TV crews had logistical problems moving around Miami and the disturbances, consequently, really never got off the ground.)

And then we had the great Paris riots of spring. The average French student is always ready to take to the barricades for something, but he chose for his greatest moment of truth a time when the press was there to cover the opening of the peace talks. Here, too, the press was bored and available because nothing was happening at the peace table.

Conservative View

Wallace's Obsession

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Within the past couple of weeks, it has begun to occur to some of the more learned doctors of political science that the Wallace movement is a serious business. The same thought has occurred to George Corley Wallace himself. He never planned it that way.

KILPATRICK

When all this began, a couple of years ago, the idea of "Wallace for President" was the property of the Alabamian only. He held all the stock. Unlike other men, Wallace is not obsessed with power, wealth, or the propagation of doctrine; he knows no irresistible craving for booze, sports, or minor diversions.

The obsesson of Wallace is Wallace. When he first embarked on his sawdust trail, it wasn't for the greater glory of political gods. Like many another tent evangelist, he was drunk on his own pulpit juices; his soul craved attention, publicity, upturned faces, blazing spotlights. These are as vital to Wallace as hay to a horse. He began clambering for the presidency as Hillary climbed Mount Everest, because it was there, because he had to.

The affliction is not especially rare. Calhoun and Clay suffered acutely in its throes. William Jennings Bryan was a victim. Adlai Stevenson felt its twinges. Harold Stassen, just a few weeks ago, was talking of winning nomination on the seventh ballot at Miami. Every community knows its perennial office seeker, scratching a political rash.

But what began with a bad case of stump itch, in the case of Mr. Wallace, has turned into something else entirely. And when I remark that the Wallace candidacy has become a serious business, I am not speaking of the bizarre possibility that the election may wind up in the House. For mathematical reasons, as Neal Peirce has shown, that prospect is extremely unlikely.

Wallace has to be taken seriously for one reason only: He has become the embodiment of public attitudes having a passion and a magnitude few persons had foreseen. He is a stubby lightning rod drawing bolts from a sunny sky. The storm was there all along; Wallace has salted the clouds and brought down the slashing rain.

Consider the incredible prospect: Without an established party, without a working organization, without a single realistic prospect for victory in November, Wallace now promises to attract some 15 million votes. In the nation as a whole, he is up to 21 per cent, and counting. He is no longer a sectional candidate. If he makes it in Ohio, he will be on the ballot in 50 States. He may win more electoral votes than Hubert Humphrey.

What are these wild waves saying? The two major parties, not to mention the major communications media, will fail to listen at their peril. The Wallace movement has become a groundswell of protest, rolling in from an unseen sea.

Part of the feeling, perhaps much of it, has a racial motivation: Wallace's people are fed up with what they regard as a coddling of the Negro; they are fed up with policies of school integration that seem to make children the mere pawns of doctrinaire judges and truckling politicians. Yet it would be a grievous mistake to attribute the Wallace movement to racial attitudes only.

At bottom, I suspect, the phenomenon is a bursting resentment against the awful anonymity that many Americans sense in their lives today. These are the people who live in boxes, little boxes; they are so many Social Security numbers, mere digits to be ground in the bellies of distant computers. They suffer the loneliness of the faceless crowd. They abide by the law, pay their taxes, go to work in the morning, come home by evening, do the dishes, read the paper, watch the TV tube. Nobody gives a particular damn about them. They are fed up with crime, fed up with the war, fed up with Lyndon, fed up with rules, regulations, and forms to be filled in. Their intumescent cry is. Notice me! NOTICE ME!

George Wallace does; or they think he does; or perhaps it is mostly negative, and they believe the major parties don't. Either way, this inchoate yearning for peace and order and personal identification, manifested in the Wallace movement, has become a potent political force. Wallace himself is staggered by it. He won't be alone in his amazement for long.

Harris Poll

Hawk-Dove Spectrum

By LOUIS HARRIS

The continuing frustration over a lack of resolution of the Vietnamese war is having an important impact in this election. Although Hubert Humphrey has been the chief target of anti-Vietnam demonstrators in this election, Richard Nixon is drawing his current lead in the presidential race mainly from voters who want a more militant approach to settling the war.

Paradoxically, the public as a whole now favors some form of de-escalation, although the margin is relatively close, 48 to 43%. However, only 13% favor complete withdrawal, and a clear majority of the American public continues to oppose a unilateral halt to the bombing in North Vietnam.

HARRIS

George Wallace's political strength comes from both extremes of the Hawk-Dove Vietnam spectrum: among those who want to escalate the war among those who want to pull out altogether.

In a Harris Survey taken in mid-September, 1,324 voters were asked:

"Suppose the Vietnam war is not over by the time the next President takes office. If you had to choose one, which one of the following courses would you favor his following in Vietnam:"

Course in Vietnam	Total Voters Pct.
Use nuclear weapons and win the war once and for all.	8
Pour in the troops and bombs to win the war with conventional weapons.	18
Keep the military pressure on until the Communists make peace.	17
Pull U.S. troops back to the cities and let the South Vietnamese do more of the fighting until the Communists make peace.	17
Withdraw U.S. troops gradually but keep supplying the South Vietnamese militarily.	18
Get out of Vietnam altogether.	13
Not sure.	9
Sustain or step up military pressure.	43
Scale down military pressure.	48
Not sure.	9

Presidential preferences divide sharply and differently depending on the positions people hold on the war. Among voters who want to use nuclear weapons, Nixon holds a wide 18-point lead over Humphrey (39 to 21%), with Wallace polling a high 27%. Among those who favor escalating the war short of using atomic power, Nixon has an even larger 20-point lead over Humphrey (39 to 19%), but Wallace draws 35% of this vote, only 4 points behind Nixon.

At the other end of the spectrum, the division is much closer. Among those who want the United States to get out of Vietnam completely, Nixon leads Humphrey by two points (35 to 33%), with Wallace rolling up 21%. But among voters who want a gradual troop withdrawal by the United States, Humphrey leads Nixon by two points (40 to 38%), with Wallace slipping to 13%.

When the electorate is divided into those who want to sustain or step up the military pressure versus those who want to scale down the military effort, the political thrust of the Vietnam issue is immediately apparent:

	Political Division Over Vietnam Stand on Vietnam
	Step up Military Pct.	Scale Down Military Pct.
Voting for:
Nixon	40	38
Humphrey	28	38
Wallace	26	15
Not sure	6	9

The irony of these results, of course, is that criticism of Humphrey within the Democratic Party earlier this year has come from McCarthy and Kennedy supporters who felt he had too Hawkish a position on Vietnam. Yet when pitted against Nixon and Wallace in the election itself, Humphrey does poorly with Hawks and no better than Nixon among the Doves.

Nixon, of course, has remained silent on the Vietnam issue in the initial stages of the campaign. This silence has actually worked to his advantage, for the GOP candidate has been able to derive support from people of all views on Vietnam who simply are not happy with the way things have gone there.

COZUMEL STILL UNADULTERATED

Civilization Brought Closer By Jetliners

LORELEI LEE

This is the second article on a skin diving expedition to Southern Mexico.

As the wheels of our plane touched down on the sun-baked runway, the cry of the Crevolin Bird—which was to affectionately assault our ears the remainder of our trip—could be heard above the declining whine of the engines.

"Dive, dive, dive!" reverberated through the cabin as Bob Crevolin, noted adventurer, photographer, lecturer, gourmet (particularly specializing in soup) and man about town, gathered his impressive array of photographic equipment about his ample person and prepared to take over the island.

It was an unnecessary command, however, for the other passengers were way ahead of him, not having quite as large an assemblage of gear.

For obvious reasons, all cameras were carried by the individuals, as opposed to being placed in the baggage compartment of the plane. This resulted in some of the larger cameras with underwater housings being cradled fondly on the laps of their owners. This was not conducive to comfort of body, but did bring peace of mind to those whose primary purpose of the trip was to take THE picture of the year.

As we left the cooler confines of the plane, the reflected heat from the asphalt again reminded us we were in the tropics but this time we were welcomed to Cozumel by the proverbial gentle breeze from the Caribbean which made the closeness of the air more bearable.

The airport was somewhat smaller than the one at Merida, but just as busy. Several different ticket counters indicated the airline traffic that arrives intermittently during the week from Miami, Chicago, Houston, Los Angeles and, of course, Merida via Tijuana. Comparatively remote and unknown 10 years ago, the jet age has inevitably brought the accessability of this get-away-from-it-all island closer to "civilization." Given another 10 years, it will take on the appearance of all the other tranquil, unadulterated, remote areas we have "discovered". I hope not.

Hurricane Beulah had "air-conditioned" the airport the latter part of last year by completely eliminating the floor-to-ceiling windows and since it was not only economically practical but a helluva lot cooler, they have remained that way. Perhaps they will be replaced manana . . .

The ever-popular order of the day, "Prepare to mill about", was issued by Herr Tour Director Gordie Heck, as he attempted to account for all of our luggage once more. This time however, one rather large box was conspicuous by its absence and its owner, Fred Bevins, was visibly distraught, for it represented his sole means of transporting back to the States all of the beautiful reef fish he had planned to borrow with his slurp gun. It never did materialize, and was the first of many equipment losses to be suffered by our group.

A brief 10 minute ride brought us to the Cabanas del Caribbe, the northernmost hotel on the island. I was prepared for the inevitable palm trees and tropical foliage surrounding the buildings, but not for the simple elegance of the entrance and lobby area.

Stark white sand stopped at the base of the marble steps leading into a spacious "room", open on both ends. The entire floor was marble, it's whiteness softened by the warm brown tones of wood paneling and heavy, Spanish furniture. Lush, green plants were placed strategically here and there, so that the over-all effect was truly one of "bringing the outside inside".

Looking past the stained-glass panels framing the other end of the room, the sand continued past bright red flowers, intense green plants and bushes, palm trees of varying heights, and finally disappeared into the green waters of the Caribbean.

I was so busy trying to record all of this on film that I had neglected to register, a detail which my roommate-to-be, Sandy Aver, had already attended to.

The vice president in Charge of Tour Groups for the hotel, known to us only as "Fulhensia", had met us at the airport and directed our entourage to the lobby. Now he was instructing one of the employees to take our luggage in hand, and he personally conducted us to our cabana. He was every bit the charming Latin and delighted us with his concern for our comfort. Throughout the days that followed, he would appear suddenly to inquire about our welfare and ask whether there was anything he could do to make our visit more pleasant, all the while encompassing us with his infectious smile. Though he seemed responsible for our peace of mind, he remained in the background and only periodically made his presence known.

Two Accommodations

The Cabanas de Caribbe is comprised of two distinctly separate types of accommodations, each reflecting a different time and country. We were fortunate enough to be placed in the older section, although we were given our choice.

If you are going to travel to the Caribbean, naturally you would want to "go native", with some more obvious creature comforts to which we have become accustomed. Our home for the next eight days was the answer to a romanticist's quest.

Bungalows for two, complete with screened-in porch and wooden-louvered windows were clustered in two rows literally a shell's throw from the water's edge. Surrounding each was a brightly colored mosaic tile walk and the ever-present plantlife.

Inside, the highly-polished tile floors were so clean you could eat off of them. Though our feet deposited left-over sand from the beach immediately outside our door, and our bathing suits rained water a lot, the good fairy in charge of clean floors did her work well — and unseen. Come to think of it, I can't recall ever seeing a maid, yet each night when we returned from our dive, our beds were turned down and plenty of fluffy clean towels were awaiting us.

The bathrooms were something else again! Each one was a work of art in mosaic tile; the floor, the walls and even the party-sized shower provided an education in color and art form each time you brushed your teeth. During the week, I made it a point to surreptitiously check out the works of art in the bungalows of my fellow travelers and, if I remember correctly, the prize for the Bathroom of the Day went to Fred Bevins and Gary Sokol. Congratulations, fellows.

Depositing my luggage unceremoniously on the nearest bed, I grabbed the first bikini I could find, blissfully disregarded the first rule in the Roommate's Manuel which reads, "Thou shalt be neat", and left a trail of clothes behind me as I ran out the front door.

The cry of the Crevolin Bird rang in my ears (he and his roommate were quartered right next door to us) as I ran to the water and immersed myself in the largest bathtub I have ever seen—complete with fish, shells and coral. The air and water temperatures were approximately 83 degrees at 2 in the afternoon and the combination of the two generated a feeling of relaxation and well being that has to be experienced to be believed.

The others had made it to the water by this time and the resultant scene was one of sheer delight and discovery. Following their initial look-see, each individual would call to whomever happened to be closest to share in his particular area. With 11 widely spaced divers in the water, all trying to "show and tell", it was truly a comedic sight.

Eventually, we paired off and settled down to closer scrutiny of the area, and if it hadn't been for the severe hunger pangs I was experiencing, I would have spent the rest of the day diving and completely missed out on the biggest discovery of all . . . the dining room!

Periodical Firm Employees Eat Steak, Beans

The annual steak and beans dinner of the San San Diego Periodical Company was a close one this year.

The company divides its 72 male employees into two teams. They then spend a portion of the year seeing which team can make the most sales of magazines and pocketbooks to dealers.

The winning team eats delicious steak with table cloths, napkins and all the trimmings. The losers eat beans —rare, medium or well.

This year at the dinner San Diego Periodical Company president Art Jacobs announced that out of $800,000 gross sales, the winning team beat the losers by a mere $76.

Dinner entertainment and program was provided by Dan McKinnon, president of KSON radio, who spoke on the Vietnam situation today and Paul Tzimoulis, publisher of Skin Diver Magazine, who related new trends and adventures in SCUBA diving.

Hugh A. Hall, celebration director of the San Diego 200th Anniversary, Inc., has been nominated as a candidate for the 1968 Governor's Award for Creative Citizenship.

The nomination, limited to 150 businessmen and civic leaders throughout California, recognizes those men and women who have contributed most to the growth of California without requesting or using tax money or government resources.

The certificate of nomination is signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan. Robert J. Wirges, secretary of the selection committee for Governor Reagan, said, "It is our sincere belief that each candidate for this award exemplifies outstanding public service through creative citizenship, and serves as an outstanding example in motivating and encouraging other Californians to put their highest citizenship potential on California's critical needs."

Hall, 42, was appointed celebration director of the San Diego 200th Anniversary, Inc., Jan. 15, 1968, after being a member of the Executive Committee and the Board of Directors.

World's Artists Invited To 200th Art Show

Artists from all over the world are being invited to participate in a special San Diego 200th Anniversary art show with California as a theme.

Maybelle Smith of the Old Town Galleries said, "nationally and internationally famous artists are being invited to participate in this unusual art competition."

Old Town Galleries is cosponsoring the exhibit with the San Diego 200th Anniversary, to produce the "Story of California in Art."

"The subject matter for all paintings in this special California art competition must be recognizable scenes, events, places, or personalities identifiable only to California," Miss Smith commented.

The California theme can be depicted during any era, from the beginning of California to the present time. It is hoped that artists from different areas will submit subjects from their own localities so that when the collection is completed the story of California will be displayed.

After the initial entries are juried, 200 paintings will be selected for the exhibit to be displayed during the entire year of 1969.

$1,000 cash prizes for first place in Oil and Watercolor also other prizes of gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded in all categories.

The exhibition of the 200 selected paintings will be rotated between the Old Town Galleries and participating public buildings.

The deadline for entries in the next phase of the competition is December 30. For prospectus and entry forms write: The Old Town Galleries, 2501 San Diego Ave., San Diego.

Opera Company Will Present 'Rigoletto'

The San Diego Opera will present Verdi's "Rigoletto" in English, at 8 p.m. in the San Diego Civic Theatre, Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 17 and 19.

This is the first production of the company's 1968-69 season and will feature British baritone, Peter Glossop as Rigoletto, Michael Trimbel as the Duke, Anne Elgar as Gilda and Harold Enns as Sparafucile. William Pickett will sing the role of Rigoletto for the Youth Performances, Oct. 14 and 15.

"Rigoletto" is based on Victor Hugo's "Le roi s'amuse" and was described by Verdi as the best material, as far as dramatic effectiveness was concerned, that he had put to music.

Maestro Walter Herbert, recently appointed General Director for the San Diego Opera, will conduct the performances and, Rexford Harrower of Amsterdam will direct the staging. The sets and costumes, designed by Lorenzo Ghiglia, have been supplied by Harrower's company, the Milan-based Interopera.

Opera tickets are on sale at the Civic Theatre Box office and all Highlander and Metro ticket agencies and bus service will be available from La Jolla and Chula Vista.

Music and Drama

A Seat In The Dark

By DAVID E. GREGSON

Once a year the San Diego Ballet Company regales balletomanes with a performance of a new work, complete with new decor, costumes and a symphony orchestra. The most recent effort was "Prisms," created on commission by Eugene Loring, one of America's leading choreographers. Two years ago Loring gave the San Diego Ballet the finest thing in its present repertoire, a work called "The Sisters." "Prisms" is no match for this earlier Loring ballet.

GREGSON

Actually, no reasonable comparison can be made between the two ballets. "The Sisters" is long on drama and short on dance in the classical tradition. "Prisms" is long on dance and devoid of theatricality. With "Prisms" Loring has given the local company a "workable" ballet, one which acts as a showcase for the talents of the dancers. It appears to be tailored for the student performers and avoids showy pyrotechnics. It is a pleasant ballet, but not very exciting or original.

"The Sisters," which owed a debt to "Fall River Legend," was not very original either, but it had a certain intensity and succinctness that made it an exemplary modern dance work. Its drama encouraged a type of emotional "freeness" in the dancers. This was a healthy influence for the company. The dancers of the San Diego Ballet display a distressing "tightness" brought on, no doubt, by too many Lew Christensen ballets. The taut performers seem to be in external conflict with their own bodies, a desperate struggle for freedom of expression. "Prisms" just seems to make matters worse.

The Ballet Gala in Civic Theater brought before the public a dance company wound up like a watch. The spring was stuck at its breaking point. The dancers were all as prisms reflecting distress and tension one upon the other. The same situation held true in "Swan Lake Act II." Deborah Hadley, the company's fine leading ballerina, looked less like a swan than she did a frantic bird trying to break from her cage. Her arms seemed to be held to her body by an invisible strait-jacket. Bill Edward (Prince Siegfried) and Michael Straubinger (Benno) were both guilty of emotional deadness along with the entire corps. Yet things went smoothly and the performance was enjoyable.

Something must be done about Von Rothbart's costume. He looked like a parakeet.

The score to "Prisms," Poulenc's Concerto for Two Pianos and Orchestra, was played well by conductor Louis Campiglia and piano soloists, Marjorie Rohfleisch and David Ward-Steinman. The brightly colored costumes looked cheap (even if they were not) and the sets were, frankly, unimaginative. The whole production may be described as satisfactory, but unmemorable.

Also on the program was the company's zillionth performance of "Con Amore" which I did not stay to see. The "Don Quixote Pas de Deux" was thrown in as an extra bonus with Barbara Martin turning out a stylish, if somewhat frantic performance. One cannot accuse her of dullness. Her partner, Straubinger, worked hard and well, but the results, fraught with tension, were less than stunning.

The San Diego public MUST support this company if they are to improve. During my three years of reviewing the San Diego Ballet I have had great hopes for the dancers who are working harder than almost anyone else in the artistic community. Good or bad, they deserve notice.

All ballet lovers, of course, were spoiled by this summer's appearance of the California Ballet Company, a group of excellent professional dancers that display all the ability, style and freedom lacking in the San Diego Ballet Company. We hope to see more of them next year, or sooner.

Tickets Still Available For Health Clinic

The Committee for Public Education of SCRF and the San Diego Area Chapter, the Arthritis Foundation, are sponsoring the panel discussion, which will begin at 8:30 both nights at Sherwood Hall, La Jolla.

The program will be informal and will be in nontechnical terms, Dr. Keeney said. The audience will be invited to participate.

Admission will be by ticket only. Tickets may be obtained from Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation, 476 Prospect St., La Jolla 92037, telephone 454-6141, Ext. 250.

Editor:

Recently public proposals have been made to give our police officers "sensitivity" training which is described by its proponents as "an understanding of our social problems" and "research into the causes and cures of crime." This "sensitivity" program is further defined as "training in the proper way to react to other people".

The well meaning promoters of this sort of indoctrination appear to have lost sight of the fact that the purpose and function of a public employee who has been hired, trained, equipped, paid and empowered with public monies and authority, is to enforce the law. Nothing more or nothing less.

He is not and should not be required to be, even in part, a social worker, a social theorist or a social researcher. He should "react" to other people as a peace officer, not as a Peace Corpsman.

A police officer to perform the duties for which he is being paid must first, be able to recognize a violation of the law, and secondly, be capable of bringing the suspected violator to a Court of Law for its determination of Justice.

Actually, an arresting or citing officer's only "reaction" to those citizens who he believes have violated a law should be one that is absolutely devoid of any "sensitivity" or non-objective judgements of any kind whatsoever. A properly trained officer displays neither compassion for, nor animosity against, a suspect because of his class, color, creed, kinship, affiliation or economic status in his decision to bring the suspect and his alleged violation to the jurisdiction of the Courts.

Exoneration or condemnation is, and should be, left strictly to the Courts. Only the Courts and our American system of Justice can and will judge the defendent deliberately and dispassionately with full cognizance of the rights of all concerned. Let's not ask our officers in the streets to replace in any respect the judge on the Bench.

Instead of training our police officers to react, they should be told and encouraged to not react. The proper performance of an officer's duties demands that he be as impartial and objective as humanly possible.

Whenever the system of Justice depends on the reaction of a policeman instead of upon the actions of the Courts, the system is aptly called a "Police State". So, for as long as we still have our Courts for the judgement of suspected private citizens and our Grand Juries for the indictment of suspected public officials, let's continue to use them.

No matter how helpful it may appear, no law enforcer in a free society should ever be told that he may or should add the Judicial Robes to his official wardrobe.

George Gilson

Gentlemen:

Don't stop now. Your statement on Cleaver was wonderful. San Diego desperately needs a voice to the left of the extreme right-wing, which the Union-Tribune represents. Let us hear more from you on all the vital questions confronting us these days.

Speak out, dear friend, speak out!

The witch-hunting days are with us again. Witness the persecution of the Poway School District by Rafferty and company. So, I'll withhold my name from this little note. I'd rather not have the American Legion picketing my office.

Sincerely yours,
A Subscriber

Editor:

Thank you for the most objective articles on Cleaver I have seen!

I can understand alarm on the side of the people opposing as well as advocating Cleaver's right to talk. Your article took both views into consideration (a rarely used technique today) and brought out the real issues.

I think you are receiving so many adverse letters because you have shown the courage to expose the attitude of so many people today which is:

"We don't want to hear it like it is . . . we want to hear it like we say it is!

Keep up the good work!

Your children, in their formative years, need to:
. . . . LEARN RESPONSIBILITY
. . . . LEARN TO USE INITIATIVE, IN THIS WORLD OF COMPETITION.
. . . . LEARN TO MEET PEOPLE
. . . . LEARN THE VALUE OF A DOLLAR

The Sentinel needs young businessmen from 10 to 12½ years of age, to bring this community newspaper to you and your neighbors.

From this first business experience these youngsters learn invaluable lessons that help them in the future.

We of the Sentinel work closely with these youngsters and you, their parents. We too are parents, therefore we make sure the problems faced by these youngsters are not beyond their abilities, particularly with our help and your help.

If you have a youngster in this age bracket, call the Circulation Department of this paper, 274-3212, and let us discuss our carrier program with you and your child.

Time Shortened For Air Force Enlistments

After nearly three years, waiting lists to enter the U.S. Air Force are dwindling.

It is now possible in a great number of cases to enlist in the Air Force within a few weeks. Previously it took a wait of anywhere from six to nine months to enlist in the Air Force.

Enlisted positions in electronics, mechanics, administration and general fields are becoming available quicker now than at anytime during the past three years, according to T/Sgt. Richard Moran, local Air Force Recruiter.

Several changes in recruiting programs have brought about the shorter waiting period to enter the Air Force. Adding a number of different enlistment categories has been the most significant change in reducing waiting periods to enter the Air Force.

Sergeant Moran cautioned that the short wait to enlist will not apply to everyone. The major consideration in an enlistment delay is based primarily on the choice of a career field picked by a person.

Job testing sometimes limits as well as improves chances for a quick enlistment. With the continued changes in job demands throughout the nation and the Air Force, enlistment categories can be wide open in one field and severely limited in another.

When a person's test results put him in a limited career field area, a long wait can often result. The same effect can happen when a person qualifies, based on testing for a large number of highly needed jobs, but picks a limited career field as his choice.

But, as Sergeant Moran pointed out, an increase in enlistment program categories has still reduced nearly all waiting periods for enlistment in the Air Force.

Further details can be obtained by calling Sergeant Moran. His telephone number is 293-6610.

Kirkpatrick Retires From Naval Center

Claude L. Kirkpatrick, 1744 Pacific Beach Dr., a long-time staff member at Naval Electronics Laboratory Center (NELC) retired last Monday from his position in the Fleet Engineering Support Division.

Kirkpatrick, an electronics engineer and NELC plank owner, joined the Center in 1945 as group leader of a project involving design, construction and installation of sonar training devices.

Former Navy associates included a post as a sonar instructor at the Fleet Sonar School in Key West Florida.

At NELC Kirkpatrick has been associated with many projects, including Naval Tactical Data System, ASW Command and Control and Fleet Operational Accuracy Readiness Check Sites. He holds several patents for training devices.

A former president of the Point Loma Federal Credit Union, he will continue to serve that group until the end of 1968.

Large Crowd Expected For Photo Fete

Over 10,000 persons are expected to attend the upcoming Fourth Annual Mission Bay Photo Festival according to Reg Bennett, executive director of Mission Bay Associates, sponsors of the event.

"This year's festival will have an appeal for all age groups," said Bennett, "as well as for both sexes and of course anyone with a camera," he said.

Rose Marie Starns, chairman of the annual event which runs for two days, said the dates have been set for Oct. 19 and 20 at the Vacation Village Hotel.

"The grounds there are extensive," she said, "and camera fans will find many things of interest to take pictures of."

Bennett said that shutterbugs will find an array of beautiful models and magnificent scenery to fill the viewfinders of the camera "and if they want to capture it all they will need plenty of film," he added. "On hand will be 50 models selected by the Southern California Camera Clubs, co-sponsors of the event with the Associates."

In addition, entertainment will be provided for visitors to the colorful event, including singers and dancers from foreign lands, a pumpkin carving contest for the children and a special pinata party also for the kids.

Prizes ranging from trophies to ribbons will be awarded to the participants including a special trophy for "Miss Mission Bay Photo Festival" presented to one of the models selected by a vote of the photographers.

Other awards will be presented to participating photographers in various scenic categories.

There will be several booths here and there on the grounds at which visitors may buy new film in the event they run out.

Zoo's Free Tomorrow For Founder's Day

More than 11,000 visitors are expected to take advantage of free admittance to the San Diego Zoo tomorrow, which has been designated as Founder's Day.

Each year, on the first Monday of October, the zoo honors Dr. Harry M. Wegeforth, founder of the world-famous attraction. All visitors are admitted to the grounds free from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. However, normal charges remain in effect for the guided bus tour and admission to the Children's Zoo, officials pointed out.

The Zoological Society of San Diego was incorporated as a non-profit organization in 1916 by Dr. Wegeforth and several friends. Dr. Wegeforth served as president of the Society until his death on June 25, 1941.

From its founding 52 years ago, the San Diego Zoo has become the world's largest selection of wild animals, exhibiting over 5,000 specimens. Many of these are considered rare or vanishing species.

Some of the rare animals which visitors may see on Founder's Day are the beautiful Okapi from deep in the Congo rain forest, Komodo Dragons, the giant Galapagos tortoises, Golden Marmosets, Pigmy Chimpanzees, Probiscus Monkeys, Indian Rhinos, Golden-shouldered Parakeets and many others.

In addition, zoogoers will see many new exhibits completed within the last year. The Klauber Amphibian and Reptile exhibit, the Wallaroo exhibit, hyena enclosures, a Snow Leopard enclosure, new cages for toucans and finches, and a new enclosure for peccaries are some of the major improvements in the zoo within the past year.

Chamber Music Features Next Library Concert

The San Diego Public Library's chamber music concert next Tuesday evening will present two works for mixed instrumental ensembles, Mozart's "Trio for Clarinet, Viola, and Piano" and Dohnanyi's "Sextet for Clarinet Horn, Strings, and Piano".

The Mozart "Trio" is to be performed by Charles MacLeod, clarinet; Gloria Hill, viola; and Sylvia MacLeod, piano. The unusual combination of instruments was chosen by the composer to accommodate the abilities of some family friends. It was composed in 1786 and is one of the finest pieces of chamber music featuring the clarinet.

Dohnanyi's "Sextet", completed in 1933, is a quasi-serenade by the Hungarian composer-pianist, combining romance and humor for a unique instrumental ensemble: Howard Hill, violin; Gloria Hill, viola; Anna Lessner, cello; Charles MacLeod, clarinet; Irving Rosenthal, French horn; Ilana Mysior, piano.

The Library chamber concerts are given in the third floor Lecture Room at the Central Library, 820 E St. They begin at 7:30 p.m. They are open to the public free of charge.

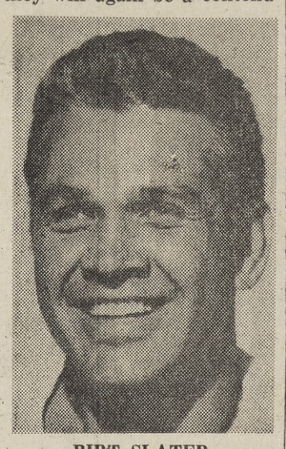
Birt's Komets Klose Door On Scoring

By JEFF HORVITZ
Sentinel Sports Writer

It has been said that the best offense is a good defense, and it seems to be holding true for the Kearny High School football team this year. The Komet defense is making a habit of holding their opponents scoreless, while the offensive attack has been just short of spectacular.

After dropping their opening game to St. Augustine, the Komets have rebounded with two consecutive shutouts, the latest being a 28-0 whitewash of Clairemont last Friday night. In crushing an injury - plagued Chieftain team, Coach Birt Slater's squad gave every notion that they will again be a contender for the Western League title.



BIRT SLATER

Kearny's offensive attack, proved effective throughout the contest, despite constant harassment by the Clairemont defense line, which caused a half a dozen Komet fumbles. The second play of the game, coming after a fumble, saw Kearny halfback Dennis (Blue Moon) Odum ramble 70 yards around left end for a touchdown, providing the Komets with all the momentum they needed.

The Chiefs followed with their only sustained drive of the game, pushing down to the Kearny eight-yard line, before being stopped. From there on in, the name of the game was Komet quarterback Gene Watkins.

Watkins accounted for three touchdowns, the first coming on a four-yard run midway through the second quarter, giving the Komets a 14-0 lead. A big play came with one second left in the first half. Following a Kearny time-out, Watkins teamed with speedy flanker Ed Evilsizor for a 37-yard touchdown bomb. Early in the fourth quarter, the Watkins-Evilsizor combo struck again on a 28-yard scoring play. Dana Ludvigson then made good on his fourth straight conversion, wrapping up the scoring, 28-zip.

Watkins' offensive showing was equaled on defense by cornerman Leonard Dover. Dover was everywhere at the same time as he hounded Clairemont quarterbacks Tom Dodd and Brian Wofford with four interceptions. The thefts came when the Chiefs were penetrating into Kearny territory, effectively halting the Clairemont attacks.

If the Kearny offense and defense coordinates the way they have of late, the Komets should have little trouble in overcoming their next two opponents, Madison and Hoover.

Meanwhile, Clairemont will be hard at work in prepping for its coming game against a highly-touted University team. The Chiefs, in the midst of a building year, seem to be taking it on the chin this season, but . . . there's always next year, and you know what they say about Indian-givers.

DRIVING HARD—And keep on trying. University High School's Tom Daniels, with the ball gives it his all but on this play Point Loma's Greg Killingbeck came up with the stopper. Daniels hard running provided three touchdowns for the Dons against the Pointers, Friday night, enough to lead the Dons to a 28-6 win. Don's Mike Crossman (85 in the white) and Steve Lebherz (64) show the kind of rock 'em-sock 'em football played by University teams. Pointers in the play are Dick Lister (89) and Bob Torok (75).

Dons Dump Pointers In League Opener

By JOHN E. WIRGES
Sentinel Sports Editor

Someone is going to have to put away the crying towel at University High School. The Dons look every bit the Dandy of the Western League and seem well on the road to fame, fortune and the league title.

Up on the line, the Dons come at every opponent every way but Sunday. Anchored by a pair of all-league linemen going both ways, the Dons are just as tough on defense as they are with the ball. Pete Adams, all of 6-4 and 270 is one of the best prep linemen ever to play the game. He has all the qualities for greatness listed by the Chargers head mentor Sir Sidney Gillman. Adams is "agile, mobile and hostile." Stepping in the guard spot next to Adams is Joe Amaral who applies the same drive and determination with a little more speed. The two of them open holes big enough to roll their school through.

University backs seem to thrive on such treatment and romp through said holes with undiminished glee. Another of the Dons all-everything candidate, fullback Tom Daniels, a nifty 6-1, 190, operates with great relish behind the big line and plowed for three scores Friday night against luckless Point Loma, as the Dons riddled the Pointers 28-6.

Daniels tallied from 2, 5, and 8 yards out and proved to be the Don's workhorse, getting the call on a majority of running plays.

First year Don quarterback Tim Gallagher, (what a fine name for a football player), shows more poise each time out and might himself be in line for league honors by the end of the season.

The Pointers showed signs indicating power and speed and on occasion, gave evidence of a strong football team. The running of Lyn Overby and Ron Grimes kept the Pointers in the game well into the late stages of the game. Craig Settles, Jim Gable and Bob Kaye all turned in creditable performances but for the most part it was a case of too many Dons in the soup.

Bennie Edens crew will be working out the kinks starting tomorrow as the Pointers prep for the Up and Coming Buccaneers of Mission Bay. University takes on hapless Clairemont next Friday, in what should be a spirited workout. The Chieftains are spoiling for an upset but from here the Dons look like they might just decide to go all the way.

Vikes Passer Likes To Run

By STEVE PARSONS
Sentinel Sports Writer

If prep coaches ever get around to voting on the point after touchdown Madison's Jack Menotti will lead the "kick-the-kick" movement.

The Warhawks, a sound football team, are nothing and three on this young season after dropping a heartbreaker to La Jolla by a single point, 19-20, Friday night on the Vikes' field. The Hawks lost by a single point to Mar Vista last week and dropped their opener with San Diego 6-0. Eight misplaced points mean the difference between a nothing and three record and a potential three wins, no defeats for Menotti's crew.

However, for every loser, there's also a winner. And La Jolla quarterback Scott Boughton is a winner. He was tabbed the "best in the league" by his coach, Gene Edwards before the season opened and in every game he looks the part.

Boughton is a hard running — good passing type who seems to love every contact. He ran for a pair of scores and passed for the other to take a direct hand in all the Vikings' goal crossings. And more important for Friday's game, two of Boughton's trys for the point after touchdown cleared the up-rights and spelled the difference in the game.

La Jolla goes against a "building" San Diego squad in a non-league contest next Friday. The Vikes will be a clear out favorite for the first time this season.

Madison takes on title-conscious Kearny in a do-or-die effort to right the Hawks train. Kearny has the horses but if the Madison attack jells, the Komets could be hard put to stop them.

Surf Scene

By DOUG SMITH
City Surfing Coordinator

Two major surfing contests, the Malibu and the Huntington, held late in September produced some rather surprising results.

In the Malibu, held Sept. 22, Windansea was awarded the team championship. It was the fourth consecutive title for Windansea. Finalists from sixth through first place in that order were: Kent Layton, Mike Doyle, Steve Bigler, Mike Purpos, Peter Johnson, and Angie Reno. All are members of the Windansea surf club.

In the Huntington, Sept. 28 and 29, the paddle event was taken by Bill Mount, with Corky Carroll, both of Windansea, second. Kenny Linn was third. Awarded the Duke Kahanamoku Trophy for best all-around surfer was Corky Carroll.

First place in the tandem event went to Ron Ball and Debbie Gustafson.

Huntington boys went to John Davis of Windansea. The Boys event was won by Chis Schlickenmeyer. Bobby Burnside was second and Leonard Foster third.

Linda Benson won the Women's event. This makes the fifth time that Linda has taken first place in the Huntington contest. Shelly Merrick was awarded second, Margo Godfrey, third and Joyce Hoffman, fourth.

First place in the Senior men went to Phil Vedder. Bob Holland was second and Les Williams, third. Junior Men's winner was Brad McCaul.

David Nuuhiwa was awarded first place in the Men's Division. David took first place in the Pacific Beach contest early in September. Mike Fobeling was second and Corky Carroll third.

Surfers interested in going to Hawaii December 10 for the Makaha Contest may do so on special chartered flight by contacting the Windansea Surf Club.

November 2 in the date for the Second Annual Police Olympics of which Windansea has been invited to judge their surfing competition.

Duck Diners Deluged With Dandy Draws

A $750 mink stole, three original waterfowl paintings, a $500 gun cabinet, Labrador retriever, portable color TV, and a dozen shotguns and rifles are among some 50 donated prizes which will be given away at the 25th annual San Diego County Ducks Unlimited fund-raising party on Thursday, Oct. 10, in the main ballroom of Hotel Del Coronado.

A gourmet dinner of boneless squab and wild rice will be served at 7:30 p.m., preceded by an hour-long complimentary cocktail hour. A new sound-and-color movie on the canvasback duck will be premiered here.

Other prizes include half a beef butchered to specifications of the winner, portable electric grill, sneak boat and an outboard motor.

Season passes for two will be given away for all San Diego Chargers home football games, Del Mar Turf Club, Gulls hockey, Rockets basketball, and Padre home baseball games. Yellow Cab is again donating $100 in script and there are many more.

Miss Patti Heighton, the 1968 Miss San Diego, is being "loaned" to DU as Miss Ducks Unlimited by the San Diego Jaycees to assist in the awarding of prizes during the evening.

Chairman Tom Clotfelter who heads the 1968 San Diego DU steering committee planning the gala event, said a few tickets are still available from DU committeemen and local sports stores at $17.50 each ($10 is tax-deductible). Net proceeds go towards restoring and maintaining waterfowl breeding grounds in Canada. The local DU committee has raised funds to pay for five projects, including Harley Knox Lake, Lake San Diego, Elser Lake, Roy Mason Lake, and the new Cartwright Memorial "duck factory."

Local Sportsmen Get Nimrod Tips

Local duck hunters, particularly those who intend to open the season next week either in this county or Imperial Valley, will do well to heed the advice which will be offered them by area authorities Thursday night at 7:30, when the San Diego County Fish and Game Association holds its monthly meeting in the Balboa Park War Memorial building.

Dayton Frost will serve as program moderator and will include in his corps of experts representatives of the city lakes, Cuyamaca, and Henshaw as well as fish and game department officials.

On hand to size up prospects for Imperial Valley hunters will be Forrest Reynolds, manager of the Wister Wildfowl Management area near Calipatria.

Several waterfowl hunting films will be shown and the public is invited.

L. J. Day Wins Away

La Jolla Day took a page out of the book on being a title contender Friday night and won on the road. The Torres got their road show off on a winning note against a tough Mountain Empire squad at Campo, where they take their football seriously.

Defensive play stood out for both teams with La Jolla Day scoring on a 32 yard romp by Mike Farwell in the second period. Jack Marlan ran for the conversion.

The Torres were forced, to the wall late in the final period but held on to save the win when Mountain Empire failed to convert after scoring.

La Jolla Day takes on another tough opponent next Friday, meeting Borrego Springs in a 2 p.m. contest at home. The Torres, after turning the win trick on the road, might be hard put to repeat on their home grounds but going on the charts, it could be two in a row by this time next week.

Injured Rider Now Walking

Javier Rodriguez, the sensational apprentice jockey who suffered a brain injury in a racing spill at Caliente July 21, is showing continued progress in his fight for recovery, and doctors are hopeful that in a few more weeks he'll be able to visit friends at the track.

The Mexican youth who had won the riding championship during the first semester of 1968 and was leading again when he had the fall is undergoing daily physical and speech therapy and now is able to take brief walks within the hospital area.

Gulls Prep For Season Opener

The San Diego Gulls returned home this week to complete final preparations for their Western Hockey League season opener next Wednesday night in Denver.

The Gulls play the new Denver Spurs Wednesday and Friday in Denver, then face the Spurs again at their home opener at the Sports Arena next Saturday night.

San Diego finished its exhibition schedule last Wednesday against the Portland Buckaroos in Portland. The Gulls also tested Phoenix on Tuesday in Victoria.

Last weekend's two exhibition games were good ones for the Gulls as they earned a win and a tie in two outings. Last Saturday night they skated to a 2-2 tie with powerful Portland in Victoria, and Sunday afternoon, the Gulls beat the much improved Vancouver Canucks, 7-2 in Chilliwick, British Columbia.

Amateur right winger Butch Morris was the big goal getter of the weekend as he got both San Diego goals in the tie with the Bucks and added another against the Canucks.

John MacMillan scored twice against the Canucks, and Dave Richardson, Warren Hynes, Al Nicholson and Wayne Smith got the other San Diego goals.

Tickets for the Gulls home opener and all Gull games are on sale now at the Sports Arena and all regular ticket outlets.

British Youth First Entry In Golf Tourney

Andrew McConnell, 11, of Bournemouth, England, is the first entry in the second annual Junior World Golf Championships scheduled for Aug. 25-29, over several San Diego courses.

The young man's father, Jock, an ice skating comedian, wrote John Brown, president of the San Diego County Junior Golf Assn., from Beirut, Lebanon telling of his desire for Andrew to play in the 1969 tournament.

Mrs. A. S. (Lou) Smith tournament director, answered McConnell's letter, accepting Andy's entry in the 11-12 age group.

"Wee Andy" started playing "golf" at 11 months of age, with a 12-inch ruler and a small white marble, and he was only two when his father gave him his first club —a cut-down seven iron.

Andy will be coming to the U.S. for the third time. He came first in 1963 to play in the National Pee Wee tournament at Orlando, Fla., winning his division.

And he came again in 1965, winning the Pee Wee 6-7 age division title, plus junior tournaments in Fort Lauderdale and Miami.

In addition to golf, Andrew ice skates, plays tennis and table tennis, and enjoys movies, swimming and baseball.

Tournament officials expect the largest foreign entry list in junior golf history for the 1969 Junior World. The first Junior World had entries from six nations, including Pakistan, Portugal, the Philippines and Thailand.
